1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

2. Claims 1-6, 8-15, and 19-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by OHTOMO et al (6,791,795).

Note figures 1 and 2. OHTOMO et al shows a magnetic head with a top pole (18,19,24) including a first top pole portion (24), a second top pole portion (18), and a top pole extension (19), a bottom pole (8,13) including a base pole (13) and a notch pole (8), a back gap closer (9,20), a coil (12,12"), and a gap layer (6,11,21,25) which encapsulates the coil. The top pole extension has a uniform width at the ABS (re claims 2 and 24). The top pole extension has a greater length along the ABS than the first top pole portion (re claims 3, 13, and 24). The notch pole and the first top pole portion have a substantially similar shape (re claim 4). The base pole is recessed from the ABS (re claims 5, 14, and 21). The notch pole extends beyond the throat height (re claims 6 and 15). The second top pole portion is substantially planar (re claim 9). The base pole and notch pole have a substantially funnel cross-section (re claim 19). The recitations concerning orientation of magnetization in claims 1 and 8 are considered met since the head of OHTOMO et al has the same configuration as claimed.

3. Claims 7 and 16-18 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

The patents to SASAKI and SASAKI et al are cited as relevant. They also read on many of the claims but have not been applied to avoid undue multiple rejections. Applicant must define over these patents in responding to this Office Action.
